DIA REVIEW COMPLETED

KIQ 50: What are the reactions of governments and interest groups, particularly in Brazil, Argentina, Peru, Venezuela, and Mexico, to current US initiatives toward Latin America?*

25X1A

Preparing NIO: [REDACTED]

PART I--EVALUATION OF KIQ ACHIEVEMENT

A. Overall Performance Evaluation. This KIQ was substantially answered by collectors and producers for events during the reporting period, but not in the context of the US initiatives considered likely in development of the KIQ and the KIQ strategy report. Positive US initiatives did not develop as anticipated; instead, reporting and production reflected Latin American reactions to events such as the passage of the Trade Reform Act and the cancellation of the Secretary of State's trip to Latin America.

B. Evaluation of Performance with respect to Collection Objectives and Relative Contribution of Collection Methods.

Overt reporting provided over one-half of the input for this KIQ [REDACTED]

Media monitoring was also a good source of information.

C. Evaluation of Performance with respect to Production Objectives.

The impact of US initiatives on Latin America was discussed in National Estimates and interagency papers on Brazil, Chile, Argentina, and Panama. Individual agencies generally met their production objectives in regard to this KIQ.

PART II--EVALUATION OF AGENCY COMMITMENTS

A. Collection Programs.

1. State: State Department Foreign Service reporting provided about one-half of the total informational input against this KIQ, and this effort met State's commitment.

2. CIA: CIA was the primary source of protected information on this KIQ, and the Agency met its collection commitment.

3. DIA: Because of the nature of this KIQ, attache reporting only peripherally contributed to its satisfaction.

4. FBIS: FBIS met its commitment to provide media coverage concerning this KIQ.

6. Treasury: Treasury attaches in Brazil and Mexico contributed to the satisfaction of this KIQ through Foreign Service reporting channels.

B. Production Programs.

1. State: Several State Department publications addressed this KIQ. An Intelligence Note published in January on Latin America reaction to the Trade Reform Act of 1974 was particularly useful. State met its production commitment.

2. CIA: CIA produced several Intelligence Memoranda which were related to the subject of this KIQ and a number of current intelligence items addressed it. CIA met its production commitment.

3. DIA: DIA production contributed to a limited degree to the satisfaction of this KIQ. In addition to a number of current intelligence reports, two estimates were produced -- one not yet published -- which dealt in part on military attitudes toward the US and US policies.

4. FBIS: FBIS met its production commitment. A FBIS Trends item of 5 March on Cuban reaction to the 1 March speech by the Secretary of State in Houston was exemplary of the general high quality of FBIS media analysis in regard to this and other Latin American KIQs.

PART I--EVALUATION OF KIQ ACHIEVEMENT

A. Overall Performance Evaluation. This KIQ was almost completely satisfied for events during the reporting period by collectors and producers who generally met or exceeded their strategy report commitments. There was extensive reporting and production concerning OAS General Assembly meetings and the formation of the Latin American Economic System (SELA).

B. Evaluation of Performance with respect to Collection Objectives and Relative Contribution of Collection Methods.

Overt reporting provided over half of the input for this KIQ particularly important protected information. Media monitoring was also a good source of information on this KIQ.

C. Evaluation of Performance with respect to Production Objectives.

A contemplated interagency paper for the Spring Foreign Ministers meeting was cancelled because it was

1. State: State/INR met its production commitments concerning this KIQ. Several relevant Intelligence Notes and an Internal Research Study were produced. An Intelligence Note on the newly-formed Latin American Economic System (SELA) was especially useful and timely.

2. CIA: CIA accomplished considerable current intelligence production concerning this KIQ. Two memoranda, one on the Quito OAS Meeting and the other on SELA were produced. CIA generally met its production commitment.

3. DIA: DIA produced a number of current intelligence items relevant to this KIQ. Defense estimates on the Latin American military, Colombia, and Peru and an appraisal on Argentina dealt in part with the subject of this KIQ.

4. FBIS: FBIS met its production commitments under this KIQ.

Preparing Officer:

25X1A

PART I--EVALUATION OF KIQ ACHIEVEMENT

A. Overall Performance Evaluation. This KIQ was substantially satisfied by collectors and producers who generally met or exceeded their strategy report commitments. There was extensive reporting and production concerning energy matters, the Trade Reform Act, pressure on US companies to trade with Cuba, nationalization of US-owned enterprises and civil air matters. The collection and reporting effort was reflected in a greater than anticipated number of intelligence memoranda and reports. Current intelligence publications also treated the subject extensively.

B. Evaluation of Performance with respect to Collection Objectives and Relative Contribution of Collection Methods.

Overt reporting provided the preponderance of input for this KIQ important "protected information". Media monitoring was a good source of information concerning this KIQ.

C. Evaluation of Performance with respect to Production Objectives.

Producers generally exceeded production objectives in regard to the KIQ. The subject was specifically addressed in interagency products on Brazil and Argentina.

PART II--EVALUATION OF AGENCY COMMITMENTS

A. Collection Programs.

1. State: State Department Foreign Service reporting provided the bulk of information collected against this KIQ. Detailed information was reported against the subjects cited in Part I. Foreign Service reporting met State's commitment against this KIQ.

2. CIA: CIA provided the primary input of protected information against this KIQ, and CIA's contribution met the Agency's commitment.

3. DIA: Because of the nature of this KIQ, attache collection made only a peripheral contribution to its satisfaction.

4. FBIS: FBIS was the principal source of information on Latin American attitudes and actions concerning US economic interests as reflected in the media. FBIS met its commitment on this KIQ.

2. CIA: In addition to considerable current intelligence coverage, CIA produced a number of Intelligence Memoranda and reports on this KIQ. CIA met its production commitment.

3. DIA: DIA made no specific commitment against this KIQ and other than a few current intelligence items and an estimate on Peru that dealt in part with this KIQ, DIA production was not a significant factor in satisfying it.

4. FBIS: FBIS daily and special reports provided timely production of media items relative to this KIQ.

KIQ 53: What are Panama's intentions and bargaining vulnerabilities in negotiations for a new Canal Treaty or related agreements?

Preparing Officer:

25X1A

PART I--EVALUATION OF KIQ ACHIEVEMENT

A. Overall Performance Evaluation. This KIQ was almost completely answered for events during the reporting period. The Community's collection and production capability was focused on requirements of the US Canal Negotiators, and producers and collectors made or exceeded the strategy report commitments. A Special National Intelligence Estimate (SNIE 84-1-75: Panama Canal Treaty: The Likely Consequences of Certain Contingent Developments) was produced at the specific request of the NSC Staff to support the negotiators. The US Embassy, Panama made an outstanding contribution to the preparation of the SNIE, and the Estimate was well received by the requester and other key consumers.

C. Evaluation of Performance with respect to Production Objectives.

Producers generally met their production objectives in regard to this KIQ. In addition to the SNIE mentioned above, numerous timely analytical items appeared in the Community's current intelligence publications.

PART II--EVALUATION OF AGENCY COMMITMENTS

A. Collection Programs.

1. State: State Department Foreign Service reporting not only provided excellent informational input, but contributed extremely useful analytical material as well. Reporting exceeded State's commitment.

2. CIA: CIA provided the primary input of protected information against this KIQ. Reporting surpassed the Agency commitment.

3. DIA: USSOUTHCOM intelligence elements provided a number of reports on Panamanian attitudes and intentions regarding treaty matters, focusing on military aspects of the treaty negotiations.

KIQ 54: What are the attitudes of other Latin American states regarding diplomatic and trade relations with Cuba, and US policies toward Cuba?

Preparing Officer:

25X1A

PART I--EVALUATION OF KIQ ACHIEVEMENT

A. Overall Performance Evaluation. This KIQ was substantially answered by the end of the evaluation period. Reporting of evolving policies of Latin American states toward Cuba was good and well reflected in the Community's intelligence products. Consumers would have liked a more precise advance reading on the close vote that materialized at the Organization of American States' meeting held in Quito, but voting plans of delegations remained uncertain until the last minute, and such mercurial shifts are very difficult to anticipate. And to a large degree, they were dependent on the course of action taken by the US.

B. Evaluation of Performance with respect to Collection Objectives and Relative Contribution of Collection Methods.

Although Foreign Service reporting provided the greatest amount of reporting against this KIQ,

C. Evaluation of Performance with respect to Production Objectives.

Producers generally met their production objectives. Interagency products on Cuban export of subversion, Chile, Panama, Brazil, and Argentina addressed the KIQ in varying degrees, and a National Intelligence Estimate (NIE 85-1-75: Cuba's Changing International Role) initiated at the end of the reporting period, will be concerned with this KIQ.

PART II--EVALUATION OF AGENCY COMMITMENTS

A. Collection Programs.

1. State: Foreign Service reporting was the major contributor of substantive reporting on this KIQ. US Embassy, Bogota, provided exceptionally thorough coverage of Colombia's re-establishment of relations with Cuba.

2. CIA: [] provided a greater proportion of reporting against this KIQ than was anticipated. Reporting provided a unique input not available from other sources.

3. DIA: Attache reporting regarding military attitudes provided some input to the satisfaction of this KIQ.

4. FBIS: Media coverage by FBIS provided

6. Treasury: Treasury attache in Mexico contributed to the satisfaction of this KIQ through Foreign Service reporting channels.

B. Production Programs.

1. State: State/INR met its production commitment in regard to this KIQ.

2. CIA: CIA accomplished its scheduled production against this KIQ, and met its production commitment.

3. DIA: Items in DIA current intelligence publications addressed this KIQ in accordance with DIA's commitment. One defense estimate on Peru also dealt in part with the views of key military leaders toward relations with Cuba.

4. FBIS: FBIS daily and special reports provided timely production of media material relative to this KIQ.

KIQ 55: What changes are there in Cuban attitudes regarding the normalization of relations with the US?

Preparing Officer: [REDACTED]

25X1A

PART I--EVALUATION OF KIQ ACHIEVEMENT

A. Overall Performance Evaluation. This KIQ was partially satisfied by collectors and producers who generally met their strategy report commitments. The Community's collection capability against the Cuban policy-making apparatus remained limited, [REDACTED] capability was improving at the end of the evaluation period. Furthermore, Cuban attitudes toward normalization of relations with the US are only partially knowable because these attitudes are still evolving and continue to be dependent in part on US actions.

B. Evaluation of Performance with respect to Collection Objectives and Relative Contribution of Collection Methods.

25X1C

[REDACTED] was by far the most significant contributor to the degree of satisfaction achieved on this KIQ. Attitudes of Cuban leaders were well reported from a variety of sources with reasonably good access to the target personalities. Monitoring of Cuban media provided an excellent source of official Cuban attitudes on normalization. No other collection method provided significant inputs to the satisfaction of this KIQ.

C. Evaluation of Performance with respect to Production Objectives.

Producers generally met their production objectives. In addition to scheduled production, a National Intelligence Estimate (NIE 85-1-75: Cuba's Changing International Role) was started at the end of the reporting period, and it will specifically address this KIQ.

PART II--EVALUATION OF AGENCY COMMITMENTS

A. Collection Programs.

1. State: Although some information was anticipated from third country foreign service reporting, there was not a significant contribution from this source.

2. CIA: CIA contributed the preponderance of information reported against this KIQ. CIA's achievement was commensurate with the Agency's commitment, and particularly useful new sources were developed.

3. DIA: Navy Human Source and Attache collection only peripherally contributed to the satisfaction of this KIQ.

4. FBIS: FBIS was the principal source of information on official Cuban attitudes reflected in the media.

B. Production Programs.

1. State: State/INR accomplished planned production against this KIQ.

2. CIA: CIA accomplished its scheduled production against this KIQ, and an additional memorandum was in work at the end of the period.

3. DIA: Several items in DIA current intelligence publications addressed this KIQ, and this met DIA's commitment.

4. FBIS: FBIS daily and special reports provided timely production of media material relative to this KIQ, and met FBIS' commitment.

PART III--GENERAL NIO COMMENTS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

This KIQ should be reissued for FY 1976.
